

What should you do?

A lady approaches you in a playground and asks you to come and look at the puppies in the back of her car. You love puppies. What should you do?	A man who says he knows your older brother offers you some hot chips. What should you do?
A man stops you at the school gate and says that he has been asked to pick you up from school because your mum is sick. He knows your mum's name and phone number but not your family password. What should you do?	A lady taps you on the shoulder in a shop and says that you dropped something outside. She wants you to go with her to get it. What should you do?
You are home alone and the doorbell rings. You open it and two men are standing there. They ask if they can come in to check your leaking tap. What should you do?	You are on the bus with a friend. The person sitting behind you starts to talk to you. He asks you about yourself, where you are going and what you are doing. What should you do?
You always catch the bus home from school. Today you are really tired and fall asleep. When you wake up, you have missed your stop and are not sure where you are. You get your phone to call a parent, but the battery is flat. What should you do?	You agreed to meet a friend at the park for a game of basketball. Your friend is 25 minutes late, but a group of older teenagers is there now and they are calling out to you to join them in their game. What should you do?
